Lessons to Be Learned From an Ejection in China One of the things that sticks in my mind from the China trip is the view of the boarding pass in another country. Even in a country with mobile payment, for example at the train station in China where you can pay for your ticket via mobile phone, the travel document hasn't really changed - it has the same basic layout. The only thing that changes is the information written on the ticket itself. This is even clearer in countries where it is more likely that people travel by air. Check out the declaration of a passenger boarding a plane in Japan. While it might be pretty common knowledge that crewmembers announce a passenger's name, date of birth, handbag, laptop, toothbrush, travel documents or 79a2804d6b
